

Celebrating history

The early history of Alexandria, Frenchtown and Kingwood, N.J., was presented by Kingwood Township Historian Sal DeSapio at The Frenchtown Inn during a tavern tour event in celebration of the 300th anniversary of Hunterdon County, N.J.

The Frenchtown Inn.

Among the attendees were Barbara Davis McGavock, a fifth generation cousin of the Warford Hotel (now The Frenchtown Inn) owners; Marie Swift Baker Johnson, born at the Readington House in Frenchtown; and Eleanor Roach Davis Lowry, another descendant of the Warford Family, born at the Frenchtown County Club.

Also at the luncheon was Kendel Culton, whose husband served as minister of the Frenchtown Presbyterian Church for 40 years.

Sal DeSapio, the Kingwood Township historian, speaks about Hunterdon County then and now.

Colleen Tomko, owner of the Frenchtown Inn, serves salads.

Dressed for the occasion, Sal DeSapio, the Kingwood Township historian, gives a talk about local history.

Guests enjoy the lecture and luncheon.

Photographs by Chiara Chandoha

Attending the luncheon were Barbara Davis McGavock, Marie Swift Baker Johnson, Kendel Culton, Barbara Lowry Morris and Joan Walter Davis, both of Plumsteadville, and Eleanor Roach Davis Lowry.